

brains/
INTERNATIONAL SCHOOLS

Distinguished School

Brains Schools have always been a good example of how to have one foot in the future, something that is so necessary in the current world of education. Proof of this is the designation of Brains International School La Moraleja as an Apple Distinguished School (ADS).

This programme is a certification awarded by Apple to innovative schools all over the world that have shown outstanding leadership and academic excellence, those schools which provide their pupils with a model educational environment, and use methodologies which stimulate their curiosity, their attention and their capacity for learning, by creating, doing, thinking and imagining.

The integration of technology in the classroom enables us to enhance and promote the different strategies and methodologies that we have been gradually introducing over the last few years. As a result, the iPad has become a more and more important tool in the development and acquisition of skills through different approaches to learning such as critical thinking, engagement with the with the real world, communication and creation, teamwork, and personalisation of learning.

Currently, of the 470 Apple Distinguished Schools in the world, only 6 of these schools are Spanish. And it is worth noting that, of these 6 schools, 2 belong to the Brains group of schools: Brains International School Canarias and Brains International School La Moraleja.

